

NATE AUSTIN 1988 -

Nate Austin, born in 1988 in Cleveland, Ohio, discovered his passion for art at a young age, with his mother noting his advanced skills as early as six years old. His love for creativity began with doodles on church fans and scrap paper during Sunday services, eventually leading him to formal training at the Cleveland School of the Arts during high school. He later attended the University of Toledo, where art took a temporary backseat, but his passion and calling proved undeniable. After graduation, Austin embraced his artistic journey, dedicating himself to a practice that gives voice to marginalized and misrepresented communities through powerful, evocative works.

Specializing in portraiture and the realities of the African American experience, Austin's art explores the love, joy, sorrow, and pain behind melanated identities. He uses bold mediums like charcoal and acrylics to magnify the beauty that already exists while provoking thought and inspiring dialogue. His work often draws viewers into unfamiliar and sometimes uncomfortable spaces, offering moments of resonance and revelation. Through his artistry, Austin strives to challenge perspectives and celebrate the depth and complexity of African American lives, leaving an indelible mark on the contemporary art world.
